14	The Oregon Cable Telecommuni	ications Association ("OCTA") opposes the "Withdrawal Of Complaint" filed by Portland General Electric Company ("PGE") on 15	September 9, 2004. OCTA opposes the withdrawal because PGE has failed to comply with the
16	Commission's rule regarding settlement, which requires that settlement be served on all parties
17	to this case and filed with the Commission ("OPUC") for review and approval. OAR 860-014-
18	0085. PGE has not only not filed its settlement agreement, it has refused to provide a copy of the
19	settlement agreement to OCTA, a party to the proceeding. The Commission should reject the withdrawal of complaint and order the parties to file their agreement for review and approval, as

1	2004, the parties have filed dozens of pleadings and the Administrative Law Judges assigned to
2	the docket entered numerous rulings and memoranda. However, no testimony was ever filed by
3	the parties. At the request of the parties, evidentiary filings and proceedings on the merits were
4	repeatedly deferred to permit the parties to attempt to resolve the case through settlement.
5	However, PGE did not attempt to withdraw its complaint at any time until after a full and final
6	settlement was reached. Thus, PGE was able to use the threat of Commission action as an
7	incentive to the parties to achieve a voluntary settlement.
8	On September 3, 2004, a telephonic status conference was held among the parties
9	and the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"). At the status conference, the parties stated that they
10	had reached a full and final settlement of the docket. PGE and Verizon represented to the ALJ
11	that the settlement had been reduced to writing and all that remained to be accomplished was to
12	obtain the necessary signatures and exchange executed copies of the final document. OCTA
13	expressed a desire to review the settlement agreement and committed to confer with PGE and
14	Verizon regarding obtaining and reviewing the settlement agreement.
15	OCTA has been in discussions on and off with Verizon and PGE since the date of 16	the last telephonic status conference, September 3, 2004. As of the date of this filing, PGE and
17	Verizon have been unwilling to provide OCTA with a copy of the settlement agreement. PGE
18	provided OCTA with a copy what had deemed to be the non-confidential adjunct to the
19	settlement agreement, a document entitled "Joint Use Agreement Between Portland General
20	Electric Company and Verizon Northwest, Inc." dated September 3, 2004 ("Joint Use
21	Agreement"). The agreement contained a list of exhibits, from Exhibit A through Exhibit K.
22	The document provided to OCTA included Exhibits A through I and K, but omitted Exhibit J.
23	PGE claimed that Exhibit J, entitled a "compliance supplement" was confidential.
24	The OCTA checked with one of its members and determined that the Joint Use
25	Agreement is essentially a PGE standard form agreement that has been offered to the member,
26

1	with the exception of Exhibit J. The "comphance supplement" denominated as Exhibit J in the
2	PGE/Verizon Joint Use Agreement does not exist in the OCTA member's agreement.
3	A copy of the relevant provisions of the Joint Use Agreement is attached hereto as
4	Attachment 1. Under the terms of Section 8.8 of the Joint Use Agreement, Exhibit J modifies
5	certain provisions of PGE's standard Joint Use Agreement. In particular, Section 8.8 provides
6	that a pole owner "may impose charges upon Licensee For Unauthorized Attachments and non-
7	compliant attachments in accordance with applicable state law, rules and regulations." However
8	Exhibit J expressly purports to modify this provision. ("Subject to the limitations set forth
9	in Exhibit J"). Thus, the provision for charges for unauthorized attachments for parties
10	other than Verizon appears to be merely a reference to state law, rules and regulations. With
11	regard to the Verizon agreement, however, Exhibit J apparently modifies those provisions.
12	Moreover, Article XI of the Joint Use Agreement makes it clear that the secret Exhibit J
13	"trumps" the non-confidential provisions of the agreement:
14151617	The Parties have agreed to supplemental terms and conditions for certain Attachments covered under this Agreement, as further enumerated in Exhibit J (Compliance Supplement), which is attached and incorporated by reference. Should there arise any conflict between the terms listed in the Compliance Supplement, while operative, and this Agreement, the terms of the Compliance Supplement shall control.
18	OCTA has not received any portion of the settlement agreement itself. It is left to speculate
19	whether or not there are special terms and conditions similar to Exhibit J.
20	OCTA's members provide cable and broadband services using fiber optic and
21 22 23 24	coaxial cables. They compete directly with phone companies like Verizon for broadband services. PGE and other electric utilities are also potential competitors of OCTA members, using either their own fiber optic facilities or broadband over power line ("BPL"). For the most part, OCTA members own no poles of their own. They rely almost exclusively on the poles of telephone and electric utilities to string their wires and fiber to their customers.

1		III. LEGAL BACKGROUND
2
3	Α.	Federal Law Requires PGE and Verizon to Provider Non-discriminatory Access to Poles.
4		Federal law governs, in part, regulation of pole attachment rates and practices by
5	"utilities," defined as follows: (a) As used in this section:
6
7		(1) The term "utility" means any person who is a local exchange carrier
8	or an electric, gas, water, steam, or other public utility, and who owns or controls poles, ducts, conduits, or rights-of-way used, in whole or in part, for any wire
9	comm	nunications. Such term does not include any railroad, any person who is eratively organized, or any person owned by the Federal Government or any
10	State.
11	47 U.S.C. § 2	224. Under this definition, both PGE and Verizon are "utilities" for purposes of
12	Section 224.
13		States can take on an active role in regulating pole attachments if they meet
14	certain condi	tions. See generally Id. Those conditions are not relevant to the issue at hand.
15	Even where a state meets the conditions precedent, the principal of non-discrimination in the
16	provision of pole attachments is an overarching requirement of federal law:
17	telecommunications carrier with nondiscriminatory access to any pole, duct,
18
19	Id. There is no express mechanism to monitor and enforce this provision. Thus, enforcement is
20	left to interes	sted parties to pursue such rights as they may have under appropriate state
21	procedural m	nechanisms.
22	В.	Oregon Laws and Rules Give the PUC Power to Regulate Pole Attachment
23		Rates Terms and Conditions.
24		As permitted by 47 U.S.C. § 224, Oregon law gives the OPUC broad authority
25	over regulati	on of pole attachments. For example, ORS § 757.273 requires the PUC "to regulate
26	in the public interest the rates, terms and conditions for attachments" to poles. Further, that section requires that "all rates, terms and conditions made, demanded or received by any public 1 utility or telecommunications utility [for attachments] shall be just, fair, and reasonable." 2 Consistent with Federal law, Oregon law prohibits utilities from discriminating in their rates and 3 practices with regard to their regulated activities and services. See, e.g., ORS §§ 757.310 and 4 757.325. Finally, in regulating pole attachments, the Commission is required to take into 5 account "the interest of the customers of the licensee, as well as the interest of the customers of 6 the public utility, telecommunications utility or consumer-owned utility that owns the 7 8 facility...." ORS 757.279(1) (emphasis added). Procedurally, the Commission has no rule that addresses "withdrawal" of 9 complaints. The Commission does have a rule regarding settlements. It provides, in relevant 10 11 part: 12 Voluntary Settlements; Stipulation to Facts 13 In all Commission proceedings, some or all of the parties may enter into a (1) voluntary settlement of issues, or enter into a stipulation upon any matter in 14 controversy, at any time during the proceeding. Any such agreement shall be subject to sections (2) through (6) of this rule. 15 16 A stipulation or settlement shall not be binding on the Commission or Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). Settlements and stipulations shall be reduced to 17 writing, served on the parties to the case, and filed for review by the Commission 18 or the ALJ. Unless waived by the Commission or ALJ, settlements and stipulations filed for review shall be supported by an explanatory brief or written 19 testimony filed and served concurrently therewith. Parties may present oral or written stipulations on the record at the hearing or other appropriate time with 20 leave of the Commission or ALJ. 21 Within 20 days of the filing of the settlement or stipulation, any party may file written objections to the settlement or stipulation or request a hearing. Upon request or its own motion, the Commission or ALJ may set another time period 22 for objections and request for hearing. Objections may be on the merits or based upon failure of staff or a party to comply with this rule. The Commission or ALJ 23 may hold a hearing to receive testimony and evidence regarding the settlement or stipulation. The Commission or ALJ may require evidence of any facts stipulated, 24 notwithstanding the stipulation of the parties. The parties shall be afforded notice 25 and an opportunity to submit proof, if such evidence is requested. 26

1	(6) If a stipulation is rejected, the Commission or ALJ shall provide the parties sufficient opportunity on the record to present evidence and argument on
2 3	the matters contained in the settlement or stipulation. No further hearing need be held where a review hearing has already been held under section (5) of this rule and the Commission or ALJ determines that the issues were fully addressed in the prior hearing.
4	OAR 860-014-0085.
5	IV. DISCUSSION AND ARGUMENT
6	PGE's "Voluntary Withdrawal Of Complaint With Prejudice" consisted of two
7	lines as follows:
8
9	Complainant [PGE] hereby withdraws the complaint filed on July 15, 2003, in this case, with prejudice and without costs and attorney fees.
10	PGE cited no authority whatsoever for its "voluntary withdrawal" of its complaint. In
11	subsequent communications with OCTA (not filed with the OPUC), PGE asserted that the OPUC
12	"looks to the Oregon Rules of Civil Procedure [ORCP"] for guidance to the extent the procedural
13	rules adopted by the OPUC do not contain a specific provision on point, which is the case here.
14	See OAR 860-011-0000(3)* * * ." The OCTA agrees that plaintiffs in a court of law may,
15	subject to certain requirements, voluntarily dismiss their complaints. However, OCTA disagrees
16	that court rules should govern here in any event. Moreover, the OPUC has a rule that 17	specifically governs this situation, which is its settlement rule. Thus, PGE is not entitled to 18	simply "withdraw" its complaint. Indeed, PGE is required to file its settlement agreement with
19	the Commission, serve it on all the parties, and seek Commission approval of the settlement of
20	the complaint.
21	This is a Commission "proceeding." The Commission's settlement rule expressly
22	applies to "all Commission proceedings." OAR 860-014-0085(1) (emphasis added). Moreover,
23	"any such agreement shall be subject to Sections (2) through (6) of this rule." Id. (emphasis
24
25	¹ PGE also cited the case In Re Portland General Electric Co., Order No. 96-055 (March 4, 1996), which allowed a withdrawal under ORCP 54A. That case is irrelevant, however, as there
26	is no indication that a settlement was involved. Moreover, the order did not involve the withdrawal of the complaint, but rather the withdrawal of an application for reconsideration.

1	added). Thus, by its terms, the Commission's rule governing settlements is very broad. The rule
2	is mandatory for all agreements as indicated by the use of the term "shall" in subsection (1). The
3	rule does not apply only when the parties decide they want Commission review or approval.
4	Under the rule, PGE and Verizon must file the settlement, explain why it should be approved,
5	provide copies of its filings to all parties, and secure the OPUC's approval. The complainant
6	may not simply say, "Never mind."
7	The fundamental error in PGE's approach is that it ignores the fundamental
8	difference between courts and regulatory commissions. Courts are established as a dispute
9	resolution forum for private litigants. The OPUC, on the other hand, is a public forum for
0	advancement of the public interest. Its powers to resolve disputes such as this are ancillary to
1	those broader functions. Thus, the OPUC is granted broad regulatory power over all the acts and
12	practices of PGE and Verizon:
13 14	The commission is vested with power and jurisdiction to supervise and regulate every public utility and telecommunications utility in this state, and to do all things necessary and convenient in the exercise of such power and jurisdiction.
15	ORS § 756.040(2). So while courts can only act when parties come before them with a "case or 16	controversy," the OPUC can reach out and bring in utilities for investigation and other
17	proceedings whenever it is necessary to protect the public interest.
18	The Washington Commission recognized the difference between a court and a
19	regulatory agency when it rejected the efforts of a number of intervenors to withdraw from the
20	Qwest-U S West merger case after they reached settlements with U S West. Although the
21	circumstances did not require WUTC approval of the settlements, the WUTC refused to allow
22	the intervenors to withdraw from the case.
23	[Quoting the Staff with favor] "[T]he context where you have two private
24	litigants trying to resolve a single private issue between the two of them [is a] circumstance [that] differs dramatically from when we have a public agency or
25	public body in findings and determinations as to whether something is or is not consistent with the public interest."
26

We agree that the two types of proceedings are fundamentally different. Moreover, the bases and purposes for our conduct of adjudicative proceedings are fundamentally different from those conducted by the constitutional and statutory courts.
In Re Application of US WEST, Inc. and Qwest Communications International, Inc., Docket No.
UT-991358, Eighth Supplemental Order Denying Petitions For Leave To Withdraw (Wash. Util.
& Trans. Comm. June 19, 2000).
The OPUC's settlement rule is a tacit recognition that the OPUC follows these same principles as expressed by the WUTC. The Commission is not a tool to be used by litigants. Having invoked the jurisdiction of the Commission, PGE cannot now complain that because its business needs have been met it can simply go away. Even absent the settlement rule, the OPUC has broad jurisdiction to review and investigate PGE's activities. While the settlement rule provides the most straightforward route to accomplish a review of the settlement, the OPUC should also be mindful that another party with important substantive rights is involved. As discussed above OCTA's members have rights to non-discriminatory treatment under state and federal law.
OCTA wants to be clear that it does not seek a ruling on whether all agreements affecting pole attachment rates and terms should be made public. Instead, OCTA respectfully submits that they should be under these circumstances. Specifically, when the OPUC's jurisdiction has been invoked and a party to the case who is not privy to the settlement requests the agreement, it should be provided. The facts in this case provide a good illustration of why disclosure is needed. Even with just the limited disclosure of the Joint Use Agreement portion of the settlement agreement, there are signs of possible discriminatory treatment vis-à-vis Verizon and cable companies. The PGE and Verizon appear to have foregone to some unknown extent their ability to impose charges for unauthorized attachments to their poles. That same concession has not been made, at least as to one other PGE licensee, an OCTA member.

1	With regard to the remainder of the settlement agreement one can only speculate
2	what other provisions might favor or disfavor Verizon. Lacking any disclosure whatsoever,
3	there is no way for OCTA or the OPUC to know if the Settlement complies with Federal and
4	state law or not. It is not unreasonable to speculate that the settlement agreement might further
5	modify the terms of the Joint Use Agreement. For example, it could provide that one or both of
6	the parties will reduce, waive, or forgive payment of rent going back or going forward. If cable
7	companies and other licensees of poles have been and are dutifully paying rent, that would
8	arguably be discriminatory. If such provisions are contained in the settlement, then PGE and
9	Verizon should explain, in some fashion, why the course of dealing between them is so unique
10	that a waiver or reduction of rent in the amounts provided for is an appropriate mechanism to
11	compensate for past claims. Explaining a settlement in this way is unusual in a court, but is
12	exactly what the OPUC's rule contemplates.
13	Finally, the OPUC is supposed to consider the interests of the customers of pole
14	licensees. While this is a dispute between PGE and Verizon, they will both ultimately expect to
15	pass through the financial impacts of the settlement to their ratepayers. Likewise, cable
16	companies must recover the costs of their pole attachments from their customers. Whether the
17	terms and conditions of the settlement are made available to cable companies immediately or at 18	contract renewal, there is a likelihood that at some point cable customers will feel the impact.
19	The Commission cannot possibly ensure that the settlement will result in a fair and reasonable
20	allocation of pole costs among the three sets of customers without reviewing the agreement.
