PUBLIC UTILITY COMMISISON OF OREGON,

Investigation into Treatment of Network Upgrade Costs for QFs

JOINT UTILITIES' RESPONSE REGARDING REVISED DIRECT TESTIMONY

Idaho Power Company, PacifiCorp, dba Pacific Power, and Portland General Electric Company (collectively, the Joint Utilities) provide this brief response to the Renewable Energy Coalition, the Northwest and Intermountain Power Producers Coalition, and the Community Renewable Energy Association's (collectively, Interconnection Customer Coalition) filing regarding the Joint Utilities' Revised Direct Testimony. The Interconnection Customer Coalition alleges that the Joint Utilities did not fully comply with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) Ruling striking portions of the Joint Utilities' Direct Testimony. The Joint Utilities disagree.

As explained in the detailed cover letter that accompanied the Revised Direct Testimony, the Joint Utilities either struck the testimony that the ALJ identified as impermissible, or revised the testimony to comply with the principles articulated in the ALJ's Ruling. The Joint Utilities also made limited revisions to the testimony so that the testimony would still make sense and contain complete sentences after removal of the stricken portions. Each revision was made in a good faith effort to comply with the Ruling, and the Joint Utilities provided redlines and explanatory comments for ease of review by the ALJ and parties.

Notably, the Interconnection Customer Coalition does not actually contend that any portion of the Revised Direct Testimony is inconsistent with the principles articulated in the Ruling. Instead, the Interconnection Customer Coalition seems to claim that the Joint Utilities were required to simply redact the portions of testimony that the ALJ struck and refile the testimony—sentence fragments and all—without any changes.¹ No such requirement is reflected in the ALJ's Ruling.² Nor would such an approach be reasonable or helpful to developing a clear and complete record in this docket. The Interconnection Customer Coalition relies on the decision of the complainants in Blue Marmot to refile their testimony with the stricken portions redacted.³ In that case, however, the resulting testimony was fragmented, incomplete, and difficult to read.⁴ The Blue Marmots' approach resulted in a confusing record and should not be viewed as helpful precedent here.

Finally, the Joint Utilities strongly disagree that the Interconnection Customer Coalition has been prejudiced by the Revised Direct Testimony filing.⁵ The Revised Direct Testimony does not raise any new issues that were not present in the original Direct Testimony, filed more than two months ago on August 24, 2020. The Interconnection Customer Coalition has had the Revised Direct Testimony since October 19, 2020, and the Joint Utilities agreed to the Interconnection Customer Coalition's request for an extension of time until October 30 to file Response Testimony.⁶ Also, the Joint Utilities provided thorough explanations of their changes in the cover letter and redlined document accompanying the Revised Direct Testimony.

For all of these reasons, the Joint Utilities respectfully request that the ALJ accept their Revised Direct Testimony and confirm that it is consistent with the Ruling partially granting the Motion to Strike.
